

El material de reaprovechamiento de otras civilizaciones...

In the construction of the Alcazaba, elements from other civilizations were taken advantage of, such as Roman shafts, marble and capitals. (Photograph from Fanny's book, page 105). Some of the most significant examples of this are the Roman white marble shafts and Corinthian capitals, dating back to the Roman period, that were reused in the Puerta de las Columnas (Gate of the Columns) and Puerta de la Bóveda Vaída (Gate of the Sail Vault).
